Between September 2009 and February 2010 the European Commission is hosting a series of 5 multistakeholder workshops on company disclosure of environmental, social and governance (ESG) information.

These workshops are part of the European Commission’s policy to promote corporate social responsibility.

Corporate Social Responsibility, also known as "CSR": is “a concept whereby enterprises integrate social and environmental issues into their business operations and into their relations with stakeholders on a voluntary basis”.
